

Hi Friends,

As many of you know, my children have taken piano lessons for years. Their piano instructor is Jim Molina and I couldn't speak more highly of him. He cares deeply about his students. He sets high expectations and then supports his students so that they become accomplished musicians.

I thought I would pass along to you that Jim has decided to dedicate himself full time to teaching piano and has now opened up more times for instruction. In addition, many of his students have begged him to come to their homes so Jim has agreed to travel to Hinsdale a few days a week.

I know his schedule will fill quickly so if you have an interest, you should give him a call right away.

Please feel free to pass this along to friends that may have kids interested in finding a great piano instructor.

I would be happy to answer any questions you may have.

Thanks.
